Boston, Sept. 18.—Connecticut's objections to the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. receiving a commission for under-writing the proposed $67,000,000 convertible bond issue by the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad was voiced ex-Gov. Morgan G. Bulkeley before Public Service Commission this af-

Ir. Bulkeley objected to the final draft made by the New Haven of its financing petition, pointing out that it failed to seek any authorization of the stock issue to take up the debentures. The commis-sion took the criticism under considera-selling debentures.

Ar. Bulkeley testified that in his opinion the New Haven could advantageously sell its Connecticut trolley holdings. This self-its Connecticut trolley holdings. This testimony was directly contrary to the statement made by Attorney Choate that Connecticut people were largely unanimous in wishing the New Haven to retain its trolleys there.

Mr. Bulkeley said the Ætna Life Insurance Company, of which he is president, held between 6,000 and 7,000 shares of stock and about $2,500,000 in bonds of the New Haven and allied companies.

No Need of Syndicate.

Mr. Bulkeley said that he had no doub writing. He pointed out that the road's stockholders and bondholders had always been ready to furnish it needed funds, and that J. P. Morgan in his Notunds, and that J. P. Morgan in his November, 1910, contract had expressly said that securities offered bondholders or stockholders should not come within the fiscal agency agreement and could be better handled by the company direct.

"Before the stockholders meeting the proposed debentures were sold on the curb at a premium." he declared. "I consider the credit of the New Haven first class, and believe it could float a convertible security at much better than

He maintained that a 5 per cent. yield would be attractive enough for financing of all roads of credit corresponding to that of the New Haven.

"Stockholders about Hartford," said Bulkeley, "have been practically unani-mous in stating to me that they intended to take all these debentures they were entitled to under the proposed terms. "The folks down there don't expect this road to go into receivership right off, do they?" inquired Commissioner Anderson.
"Well, of course under some circumstances the management might be better than it has been for the last ten years." replied Mr. Bulkeley, and he further asserted that he was surprised to hear directors of the road talking about receivership at the stockholders' meeting.

The meetings were held in the president's offices of the New York, New Haven and Hartford in the Grand Central Station. The meeting of the New Haven board was not finished and was adjourned until to-day.

"President Hadley will make a strong addition to the board of directors of the New Haven road," said President Elliett. "He is a deep student of railroads and I believe the directors made a very wise choice."

President Elliott said after the meeting that no action on the letter was necessary.

"It is simply automatic," he said. "The acreement provides that either party must give the other ninety days notice if they wish to discontinue the contract. The letter has been placed on file and the Morgan firm will cease to be the fiscal agents of the road at the end of the specified time without any action on the part of the directors of the New Haven."

¶ This new novel, "The Way Home." touches greater depths of human nature than even "The Wild Olive" or "The Street Called Straight." It deals with the most important things of life, single life, married life, and church life, and portrays the inner motives of a self-centered man. It is the story of the struggle between the spiritual and the material in the average man-a series of tense, emotional situations in which a strong man who was far from being a hero found himself. He found, too, a tower of strength in the love of the woman he had misunderstood.
